1. The Judicial Committee or each county shall appoint two judges for each voting place in the county that may be designated by them for holding said election in any city, town or township. The judges so appointed shall perform the duties both of judges and clerks. Said committeemen shall notify said persons of their appointment by causing the list to be published in a Democratic newspaper or newspapers in the county, or by letter, or personally, if need be. Should any judge so appointed fail to attend or discharge the duties of such, the voters present at the hour of opening the polls shall select some suitable person to act in the place of said absent judge.

2. All Democrats, who are, or will be legal voters at the general election to be held in November, 1904, shall be entitled to vote at the primary election or the nomination of a candidate for Judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit and two Judicial Committeemen from each county.

THE STATE PALACES.

Fifty-Three American Commonwealths Represented.

This includes Our Territories and Island Possessions Not Included in Former Expositions - Notable Feature of the St. Louis Fair.

State and territorial participation in the World's Fair of 1904 is upon a scale that exceeds the most sanguine expectations. There are fifty-five states, territories and island possessions of the United States. Fifty-three of these are represented, a movement is on foot in the fifty-fourth to raise a fund for participation, and there are prospects that the fifty-fifth will not permit itself to go down into history as the sole state unrepresented at the greatest exposition ever held.

Forty-five of these states and territories have appropriated money for buildings or groups of buildings on the exposition grounds. The majority of the buildings already are completed or well under way. Many of them are magnificent mansions.

The two states not yet officially represented are New Hampshire and Delaware. In New Hampshire a fund is being raised by private subscription in order that the Old Home State may participate. The eight states and possessions not represented by separate buildings, but providing generous displays, are Alabama, Colorado, North Carolina, North Dakota, Wyoming, Vermont, Florida and Porto Rico.

At the Columbian Exposition in Chicago there were thirty-nine state and territorial buildings—six less than at St. Louis. States and possessions participating at St. Louis and absent from Chicago are Alaska, Georgia, Hawaii, Indian Territory, Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, South Carolina and Tennessee.

The aggregate amount appropriated thus far for state and territorial participation at St. Louis is $6,764,986. The total expenditure at Chicago for such purposes was $5,414,931. The difference in favor of St. Louis, four months before the exposition opens, is $1,350,055.

The Filipino reservation at St. Louis occupies forty acres and includes scores of buildings. It is aptly termed an exposition within an exposition. Alaska has three buildings. The Indian Territory building is a large and roomy structure, in which will be made a display calculated to edify and enlighten, as well as to amuse the curious.

As to the state buildings, they are notable not only for their size and costliness but for the picturesque locations which they occupy. They stand not in a rectangular group on flat ground, but extend along the sides of several splendid avenues, bearing such names as Colonial and Commonwealth, stretching up the hill-sides through groves of natural forest trees. Gleaming through the summer foliage, their white or ivory staff exteriors will present the appearance of hospitable mansions embowered amid the green and bloom of an actual city's choice residential section. Architects have vied with each other to produce perfect combinations of coziness and beauty. Some of the buildings are in the style of clubhouses. Others are patterned after imposing state capitols. Still others are reproductions of historic buildings in the respective states. There are pagodas, bungalows, hunting lodges and cottage homes amongst these state and territory buildings.

In each building there will be held during the exposition brilliant receptions. Pine-clad Maine will meet bayou-cut Louisiana. Orange blossoms of Florida will mingle their aroma with that of the fir-cones of Oregon. Imperial New York will meet and greet golden California. Texas, vast and visionful, will welcome Little Rhody.
